THE SLEEPING BEAUTY.

LONG, long ago, in ancient times, there lived a King and Queen, -
And for the blessing of a child their longing sore had been :
At last, a little daughter fair, to their great joy, was given,
And to the christening feast they made, they bade the Fairies seven—

The Fairies seven, who loved the land—that they the child might bless. 2
Yet one old Fairy they left out, in pure forgetfulness.
And at the feast, the dishes fair were of the reddest gold ;
But when the Fairy came, not one for her, so bad and old.
Angry was she, because her place and dish had been forgot,
And angry things she muttered long, and kept her anger hot,

Until the Fairy godmothers their gifts and wishes gave :
She waited long to spoil the gifts, and her revenge to have.
One gave the Princess goodness, and one gave her beauty rare ;
One gave her sweetest singing voice ; one, gracious mien and air ;
One, skill in dancing ; one, all cleverness ; and then the crone
Came forth, and muttered, angry still, and good gift gave she none ;

But said, that in the future years the Princess young should die,
 By pricking of a spindle-point—ah, woeful prophecy!
 But now, a kind young Fairy, who had waited to the last, [are past;
 Stepped forth, and said, "No, she shall sleep till a hundred years
 "And then she shall be wakened by a King's son—truth I tell—
 "And he will take her for his wife, and all will yet be well."

In vain in all her father's Cou-
 In vain in all the country-side;
 For in a lonely turret high, a
 There lives an ancient woman
 The Princess found her out o-
 Alas! the spindle pricked her

The spinning-wheel's forbid
The spindles sharp are hid;
Up a winding stair, ³ [care,
Who still turns her wheel with
Day, and tried to learn to spin;
And—the charm had entered in!

And down she falls in death-like sleep: they lay her on her bed,
And all around her sink to rest—a palace of the dead!
A hundred years pass—still they sleep, and all around the place
A wood of thorns has risen up—no path a man can trace ⁴
At last, a King's son, in the hunt, asked how long it had stood,
And what old towers were those he saw above the ancient wood.

An aged peasant told of an enchanted palace, where
A sleeping King and Court lay hid, and sleeping Princess fair,
Through the thick wood, that gave him way, and past the thorns that drew
Their sharpest points another way, the King's son presses through.
He reached the guard, the court, the hall,—and there, where'er he stept,
He saw the sentinels, and grooms, and courtiers as they slept.

Ladies in act to smile, and pages in attendance wait;
The horses slept within their stalls, the dogs about the gate.
The King's son presses on, into an inner chamber fair,
And sees, laid on a silken bed, a lovely lady there;
So sweet a face, so fair—was never beauty such as this;
He stands—he stoops to gaze—he kneels—he wakes her with a kiss.

He leads her forth : the magic sleep of all the Court is o'er,—
They wake, they move, they talk, they laugh, just as they did of yore
A hundred years ago. The King and Queen awake, and tell How all has happed, rejoicing much that all has ended well.
They hold the wedding that same day, with mirth and feasting good—
The wedding of the Prince and Sleeping Beauty in the Wood.

HIRE BY THE DAY
QUIET PONIES

I HAD a little pony,
They called it Dapple Gray,
I lent it to a lady
To ride a mile away,
She whipped it, she slashed it,
I will not lend my pony more,
She drove it through the mire,
For all the ladies' hire.

JOHN SMITH, fellow fine,
Can you shoe this horse o' mine?
Yes, indeed, and that I can!
As well as any man!
There's a nail upon the toe,
& there's a nail and there's a brod
To make the powny speel the broe;
& there's a nail and there's a brod
a horse wheel shoe!

BLUEBEARD.

ONCE on a time there lived a man hated by all he knew,
Both that his ways were very bad,
and that his beard was blue ;
But as he was so rich and grand, and led a merry life.
A lady he contrived at last to induce to be his wife.

For a month after the wedding they lived and had good cheer,
And then said Bluebeard to his wife,
“ I ’ll say good-bye, my dear ;
“ Indeed, it is but for six weeks that I shall be away,
“ I beg that you'll invite your friends,
and feast and dance and play ;
“ And all my property I ’ll leave confided to your care :
“ Here are the keys of all my chests,
there's plenty and to spare.

“ But this small key belongs to one small room on the ground-floor,—

“ And this you must not open, or you will repent it sore.”

And so he went; and all the friends came there from far and wide,

And in her wealth the lady took much happiness and pride;

But in a while this kind of joy grew nearly satisfied,

And oft she saw the closet door, and longed
to look inside.
At last she could no more refrain, and turned the little key,
And looked within, and fainted straight the horrid sight to see ;
For there upon the floor was blood, and on the walls were wives,
For Bluebeard first had married them, then cut their throats with knives.

And this poor wife, distracted, picked the key
up from the floor,
All stained with blood; and with much fear
she shut and locked the door.
She tried in vain to clean the key and wash
the stain away
With sand and soap,—it was no use. Blue-beard came back that day;
At once he asked her for the key,—he saw the bloody stain.—

*"You have been in the closet once,
and you shall go again!"*

"O spare me, spare me! give me time, nor kill me hastily!"

"You have a quarter of an hour,— then, madam, you must die!"

"O sister Anne, go up, go up, and look out from the tower ;

"I'm dead unless my brothers come in a quarter of an hour!"

And Anne looked once, and Anne looked twice, and nothing saw abroad,

*But shining sun and growing grass,
and dust upon the road.*

"Come down!" cried Bluebeard, "time is up!" With many a sigh and moan, She prayed him for a minute more; he shouted still, "Come down!"

"O sister Anne, look out, look out! and do you nothing see?"

"At last I see our brothers two come riding hastily."

"Now spare me, Bluebeard,—spare thy wife!" but as the words were said,

And just as Bluebeard's cruel blade was descending on her head,
In rushed the brothers with their swords,—
they cut the murderer down,
And saved their sister's life, and gained much glory and renown ;
And then they all with gold and plate and jewels rare made free,
And ever after lived content on Blue-beard's property.
